AAS/HSTA 417 Prayer and Civil Rights

Autumn 2017
Tobin Miller Shearer
Tuesdays and Thursdays, 12:30-1:50 p.m., Room TBD

Prayer and Civil Rights
With knees bent and heads bowed, a group of fervent African-American activists prepared to pray on the sidewalks of Albany, Georgia, in 1963. A few minutes later, dour-faced police officers arrested the young people and removed them from the sidewalk to a local jail. Such pious action deserves careful scrutiny. Built around the question, “Does religion help or hinder the pursuit of social change?” this class combines historical and religious studies methods to trace changes in civil rights activists’ efforts to make use of religion. By focusing on a particular religious practice – in this case prayer – in a specific but limited period of time, this course challenges students to examine African-American history and religion from two primary perspectives. First, students will consider how historical action forms meaning, in this case through the public recitation of appeals to divine authority. Secondly, students will study the social significance of religious practice by examining how African-American Christians articulated a rationale for change, appealed to commonly held ethical values, and evoked the assurance of divine support. This course thus complicates prevailing ideas about the normalcy of African-American religious practitioners’ prayer, invites students to examine their assumptions about the nature of prayer, and traces how religion spilled out of sanctuaries into the streets.

Objectives
Students will be able to –
1. ask purposeful questions about religious practice and answer them creatively;
2. differentiate among and explain the major characteristics of the ritualistic, rhetorical, and political aspects of Christian prayers;
3. identify significant shifts in the Civil Rights Movement between 1948 and 1976 and describe where, when, and how civil rights actors used prayer in public;
4. use resources from the disciplines of African-American history and religious studies to analyze primary source documents;
5. develop, revise, and defend written arguments explaining the meaning of a specific instance of public prayer.

Assignments
Each week’s classes will include input on religious theory and African-American history, opportunities for student discussion, topical readings, and regular writing assignments. In all classroom activities, students will draw on readings from both religious studies theory and African-American civil rights history. This course is designed to support each student in writing a 20-page research paper that analyzes a set of primary sources including video footage of prayers by grassroots civil rights activists, written prayers, and sound recordings of civil rights activists giving public prayers. The research paper will be submitted once as a research topic, once as an outline, once as an initial draft, once as a second draft, and once as a final draft with the expectation that each draft will improve upon the previous one. In order to receive full credit for the paper, each draft must be submitted in full. This course fulfills the Upper Division Writing Course requirement.

Grading
- Participation – 20%
- Research paper – 80%

Participation
For each class you attend having read the assigned readings by their respective deadlines, you earn two points (29 classes x 2 points = 58 points). You can earn the remaining 42 points of the possible 100 participation points by:
- Earning 9 points for each 3-paragraph book summary you write and turn in by the date it is assigned (4 books x 9 points = 36 points)
- Earning 3 points for each 1-paragraph article/chapter summary you write and turn in by the date it is assigned (7 articles/chapters x 3 points = 21 points)

If you write all possible summaries and attend all classes, you can earn a total of 115 points. Any points earned over 100 will be added to the grade of your third research paper draft.

Research paper
Each research paper is worth 200 points. You can earn those points in the following manner:
1. turn in a clearly focused, 3-4 sentence research topic by the assigned date = 15 points
2. turn in a paper outline:
   - on time = 5 points
   - meets minimum length requirement = 5 points
   - identifies the ten secondary sources that will be used = 10 points
3. turn in draft one of a research paper:
   - on time = 5 points
   - meets minimum length requirement (19 ½ pages) = 10 points
   - is written with complete sentences in standard paragraph form = 5 points
   - includes two student-identified primary sources plus those provided in class = 5 points
4. turn in draft two of a research paper:
   - on time = 5 points
   - meets minimum length requirement (19 ½ pages) = 10 points
   - is written with complete sentences in standard paragraph form = 5 points
   - includes two student-identified primary sources plus those provided in class = 5 points
   - demonstrates clear improvement on previous draft = 5 points
5. turn in final draft of research paper
   - on time = 10 points
o meets all criteria of the research paper rubric = 100 points (pro-rated according to grade scale below)

Grade scale

- A+ 98-100
- A  93-97
- A- 90-92
- B+ 87-89
- B  83-86
- B- 80-82
- C+ 77-79
- C  73-76
- C- 70-72
- D+ 67-69
- D  63-66
- D- 60-62
- F  ≤59

Class size

Enrollment is limited to 20 students.

Classroom etiquette

I expect that all students will join me in creating a supportive and focused learning environment by:

- turning off all cell phones (and thus doing no texting, e-mailing or instant messaging);
- using laptops only for note taking;
- not doing crosswords, reading newspapers, or other recreational activities;
- not talking with fellow classmates unless instructed to do so.

Official consequences

During lectures, I will give you my complete attention. I ask the favor of the same from my students. Should a student’s behavior interrupt our learning environment, he or she will first be given a private verbal warning. Upon second infraction, the student will receive a public warning. Should disruptive behaviors continue following two warnings, the student will be issued a warning in writing. Any subsequent disruptive behaviors will be turned over to the University’s disciplinary committee.

Instructor contact

I maintain regular office hours that I will post on the course website. You are also welcome to contact me by e-mail. My goal is to respond within 24 hours. In case of emergency, you may contact me by phone as listed on the course website.

Missed deadlines

My goal is always to encourage your best work in the midst of multiple classroom demands and real life emergencies. Limited deadline extensions can be arranged if the student makes advance contact. Late assignments will be marked down 10 points/day up to the full value of the individual assignment (research paper steps 1-5 above).

Academic honesty
Stealing someone else’s ideas is the same as stealing someone’s property. Cite others’ ideas in standard footnote or endnote format (in written work and all projects). Paraphrase whenever possible. In general, a paraphrase uses no more than two of the same words in a sentence as the original source. See: Student Conduct Policies: http://www.umt.edu/vpesa/Dean%20of%20Students/default.php for a full review of the University of Montana’s student conduct code.

Accessibility
The University of Montana assures equal access to instruction through collaboration between students with disabilities, instructors, and Disability Services for Students. If you think you may have a disability adversely affecting your academic performance, and you have not already registered with Disability Services, please contact Disability Services in Lommason Center 154 or 406.243.2243. I will work with you and Disability Services to provide an appropriate modification.

Readings

Course pack (available on course website)
Schedule

Week 1 – August 31
Introduction to Course

Week 2 – September 5 & 7
Introduction to religion and civil rights movement, Major themes in Civil Rights Movement historiography
   Reading due Thursday: Payne – Chapters 1 through 7

Week 3 – September 12 [No class on Thursday – reading/research day]
How to select a paper topic and discussion of Payne
   Reading due Tuesday: Payne – Chapters 8 through end (including epilogue and bibliographic essay)

Week 4 - September 19 & 21
Civil Rights Movement 1 – 1940-1955
   Reading due Thursday: Garrow.
   Research Paper topic (3-4 sentence description) due by Wednesday, September 20, at 11:59 pm.

Week 5 – September 26 & 28
Civil Rights Movement 2 – 1956-1963
   Reading due Thursday: Findlay, “Churches Join the Movement.”

Week 6 – October 3 & 5
Civil Rights Movement 3 – 1964-1974
   Readings due Thursday: Balmer; Findlay, “Religion and Politics in the Sixties.”

Week 7 – October 10 & 12
The Broad American Religious Context and Writing Workshop #1: Warrants and Structure
   No readings due this week.
   Research Paper Outline due by Wednesday, October 11, at 11:59 p.m.

Week 8 – October 17 & 19
African-American Religious Context
   Readings due Thursday: Chappell

Week 9 – October 24 & 26
Religious Theory 1 – What is religion?
   Readings due Thursday: Smart.

Week 10 – October 31 & November 2
Religious Theory 2 – What is ritual?
   Readings due Thursday: Livingston.
Week 11 – November 7 & 9
Religious Theory 3 – What is prayer?
Readings due Thursday: Zaleski and Zaleski, “The Ecstatic.”

Week 12 – November 14 & 16
Reading Prayer into Civil Rights Movement History; work on style
Reading due Thursday: Marsh.
Research Paper Draft 1 due by Wednesday, November 15, at 11:59 p.m.

Week 13 – November 21
Reading Prayer out of Civil Rights Movement History
No class on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.
Reading due Tuesday: Orsi.

Week 14 – November 28 & 30
In-class intensive writing workshops
No readings due this week.
Research Paper Draft 2 due by Sunday, December 3, at 11:59 p.m.
Also include one paragraph describing the changes that you made since your last draft and why you made them.

Week 15: December 5 & 7
Thinking Faith into and out of African-American Religion
Reading due Thursday, Chapman.

Week 16: December 12
Problem solving session on papers and course wrap up and evaluation.
No readings due this week.

Finals week
Class will meet during our scheduled exam time, Thursday, December 14, 3:20-5:20.
Each student will give an informal ten-minute description of the major findings and argument of their paper.
Research Paper Final Draft due by Sunday, December 17, at 11:59 p.m.
Also include one paragraph describing the changes that you made since your last draft and why you made them.